Artist Statement

This piece of art, to me, is soft and almost yearning. When I look at it I am filled with accomplishment- it has soul. For my AP Art Studio class, I'm working on body autonomy and positivity by working on drawing different people and different body types. To accomplish this successfully their eyes need to be able to tell the story of what these people I'm placing commentary upon are going through. While this example of an eye has animalistic/mythological inferences, it very much holds a human soul. It tells a story, and to me, whether it be words or a piece of artwork, the story is the most important part of life.
