This is a picture of my cows on my farm taken at night with an Iphone 11 camera. Some things in life are worth every second of it. Take this picture for example its showing one of my mother cows giving her little loved one a kiss. So this intrigued me. If human mothers kiss their babies when they're happy, why can't animals be the same way? This picture shows a connection between animals and humans. The picture captures the essence of a mother's love for their young. The lighting reminded me of how fleeting moments like this can be caught at any point of time. This also shows me how to never take your loved ones for granted. Animals care and love for their young just as humans are drawn to do. Animals and humans will always have a connection to loving their little ones and making every moment with them last a lifetime. Animals may not look like they express their love a lot but they do and this shows us that they're not just big and dumb, but are loving and caring beings. We need to view the world more by seeing what animals and all of their beauty can bring. I was out with my grandpa at our cows feeding and taking care of them. I heard one of the cows next to me so I decided to take a picture of them and I captured a beautiful moment in the making. I was more than shocked to have taken a picture like this and it was a picture to be remembered forever. It all helped out with the lighting and details it has to show the full image. I also have to thank my grandpa for bringing me out to help him.
